

We're on location at the film festival

The Record has everything WFF

The Woodstock Film Festival, now in its eighth year, is gearing up again. Set to take place tomorrow to Sunday in Woodstock, of course, as well as Rhinebeck, Rosendale and Hunter, the festival is chock-full of fun. The Times Herald-Record always looks forward to covering this special event. Here's what you can look forward to from us. Pick up the paper tomorrow to read all about the area's rich history of film and the impact of the festival on that heritage. Keep grabbing the paper through the 15th for ongoing coverage and visit www.recordonline.com/wff, where we've already got some great features up. We'll continue to add content throughout the festival.

Stories

We kicked off the coverage with our annual pocket guide in Go! on Sept. 28. Stay tuned for a deep look at the impact of the festival on our area, appearing Oct. 10. And pick up the Record on Oct. 11-15 for ongoing coverage of the films, the parties, the panels and the people.

Video

- Tips: Get some helpful hints on how to make the most of your film fest experience from someone who's been there many times before.
- Meet the Cast: The Times Herald-Record will be out in force during the festival, covering the screenings, the parties, the panels and the people. We'll be shooting video and snapping photos. And all the while, we'll be having fun. Find out who's who on the team and who's covering what.
- One-on-one with Meira: Festival co-founder Meira Blaustein sat down for a quick interview with entertainment reporter Germain Lussier. Ever wonder how the festival landed in Woodstock? We've got the answer.
- Ongoing coverage: Videographer John Pertel will have his camera in hand during the festival, and he'll be producing segments capturing the vibe of the scene.

Quiz

How much do you know about films with local connections? Ten quick questions and you'll know.

Blogs

- Blogstock 2007: All of our on-site reporters will be posting throughout the festival.
- Mind of Meira: Festival co-founder Meira Blaustein will check in periodically to provide insight into the festival from her unique perspective.

You review

If you're attending the festival, definitely come back to our Web site to tell us what you thought of the films you saw. We might even use your comments in print.

Did You Know...

- ◆ The average cost of a nursing home in Orange County is $9,000 per month
- ◆ One out of every two Americans over 65 will require some form of long-term care.
- ◆ Approximately half of those entering nursing homes deplete their assets within six months.
- ◆ Medicaid will pay for long-term care only after you have become "impoverished" - that is, you must "spend down" your assets until you are left with only $4,200.00.

The best way to protect your assets is to act before care is needed. Long term care planning is not just for the elderly. Generally, the earlier you plan, the lower the cost to protect your assets, and the options for planning are greater. To learn strategies to help you and your family protect your assets from the high cost of long-term care, you are invited to an educational workshop. There is no cost or obligation to attend.
